Abstract
The 2013 Australian Candidate Study (au.edu.anu.ada.ddi.01273) is the tenth in a series of election studies on federal election candidates. In 2013, candidates from the following parties were surveyed - Australian Labor Party, Liberal Party of Australia, National Party of Australia, Liberal National Party (Queensland) and Australian Greens. The study examined the prominent election issues, including attitudes to particular economic issues, social issues and opinions on the most critical problems facing Australia. Background variables include age, country of birth, age when left school, number of years of tertiary study, religion, frequency of attending religious services, marital status, House contested and party affiliated with. Note: A selection of demographic, party affiliation and political background variables have been grouped to ensure confidentiality of the candidates. Others are restricted and are available by request only. Please contact the Australian Data Archive at ada@anu.edu.au for further details.
